A great way for students to reach ahead and earn additional credits

The Canadian Ecology Centre

Parents and students in grade 8 to 12, join us to find out how students can earn a full high school credit in a two week residential summer program.

The Canadian Ecology Centre is a non-profit environmental science education and research facility. During the summer months the CEC offers public educational programs, high school credit courses and youth camps, and professional development opportunities for teachers. The Canadian Ecology Centre's "School of Experiential Education" has been offering EXPERIENTIAL summer credits to students in grades 9 through 12 for over 15 years. Credits are delivered in a hands-on approach, adapting and accepting of your child's learning style. Students live on site in cabins, while enjoying the natural environment that surrounds them.

These two week residential summer programs offer students entering grade 9 to 12, an opportunity to earn a Ministry of Education approved full high school credit in Science, Geography, Guidance or Physical Education.

Join us Thursday, March 22, to learn more
